Don Seitz, a prominent New York newspaper man, formerly of Norway, tells the New York Universalists that many churches lose to poor business management rather than to decline of spiritual energy. He compliments the Christian Science church on the fine harmony which it accomplishes between commercial and spiritual commodities. He thinks the Christian Science church is the most successful in the world because Mrs. Eddy was as wise in business as she was prophetic in spiritual continents. He thinks church property should be taxed; that there is an excess of church building, in view of the prevailing empty pews in existing edifices. "A council composed of wise heads from all the churches in greater New York" is suggested, as a commercial trust to promote trustworthy business and faith in God.

Inspected South Paris Water Supply Reservoirs.

Charles W. Bowker, superintendent of the South Paris Water Co., recently invited a party of Norway people to inspect their water system. A trip was made to the springs and reservoirs. In the party were Capt. W. W. Whitmarsh, C. N. Tubbs, H. D. Smith, H. B. Foster and the writer.

The Cooper Spring reservoir is some four miles from the village and the dam holds half a million or so gallons of water. At this time they are taking all their water from this spring and there is a good flow of water over the dam. A dam has been made across Stony Brook, where a large quantity of water is held. Both dams are made of stone and cement. The latter some 16 feet high and water is conveyed to the Cooper Spring main by 1500 feet of six inch pipe and from there on to the Hooper Reservoir. It is so arranged that either spring can be shut out of the main line.

The Hooper Reservoir is 200 feet higher than the village, thus giving a water pressure of about 190 pounds. This reservoir holds 500,000 gallons, and is built of cement and is arched over and covered with the same.

From this a 12-inch main takes the water to the village. It is arranged so the reservoir can easily be cleaned out by the shutting and opening of gates. This is not all the storage of water the plant has. They have the million gallon reservoir, on the Swett farm built by the Norway Water Co., and taken over by them from that company, hence it is that the South Paris Water Co., can start with a drought or fire with two and a half million gallons of water—one and a half million gallons connected with the village system of pipes by 12-inch and 10-inch main from independent reservoir.

They have an ideal water system and there is little likihood even in the most extreme summer drouth of a lack of water.

The water system is owned by the Village Corporation and under the control of a Water Board or Commission composed of Geo. P. Morton, Walter L. Gray and A. E. Shurtleff.

The water plant has cost the Corporation right round $70,000.00—$68,000.00 of which was raised by a 4 per cent. bond and on such conditions that they can be paid by the earnings of the Water Company.

Norway Drain and Sewer Company.

This legislature will be asked to grant a charter to the Norway Village Corporation allowing the putting in of a sewerage system and the right to assess a certain per cent. of the cost from the abuttor whose property will be benefitted by the advantages of a sewer.

The report from the Civil Engineer who made the preliminary survey has not yet been received. Whatever that may be it seems necessary to have certain charter rights to enable the Corporation to construct the sewer and place the burden of the same where it rightfully belongs.

Celebrates 82d Birthday.

One of the pleasantest gatherings which takes place throughout the year in the Hayden family is the celebration of Mrs. Clara Hayden's birthday and each year the children endeavor to gather at the homestead and spend the day with their mother.

Wednesday, Mrs. Hayden celebrated her 82d birthday and all of her children were at home except Mrs. J. B. Chaffin of Buckfield and John J. Hayden of Haverhill, who were unable to attend. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. S. H. Hayden of Haverhill, Mr. and Mrs. F. P. Knight and children, Samuel and Mary, Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Winchester and Marshall of Manchester-by-the-Sea, Dr. F. A. Hayden of Portland, Henry B. Hayden of Buckfield, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Hayden and Madeline, Dr. and Mrs. F. E Drake and Mary E. Chaffin.

At noon the party of seventeen enjoyed an excellent chicken dinner. The birthday cake was made by Mrs. Clara Hayden. It was a handsome one, contained the date of her birth, the present date and the word, Welcome in fancy andy over white frosting. Mrs. Hayden, while all were seated at the table, made a brief speech expressing her heartfelt thanks to her children which she termed as her jewels, and which she considered were her richest blessings.

The home was prettily decorated with pinks, narcissus and jonquils, the gifts of relatives. She was also remembered by a large circle of friends, who sent her a shower of post cards and letters.

Mrs. Hayden is an exceptionally bright and active woman and appears much younger. She enters into the pleasures that are provided her and enjoyes them to the fullest extent.

During the evening the party enjoyed a musical program with solos and reading by the grand children and all joined in singing the old familiar song of Mrs. Hayden's childhood days, and in this way one of the pleasantest days of the year drew to a close.

Mrs. Marble is a well known reader in this vicinity and is a favorite of the two towns. Leak at the Reservoir.

Friday evening at about six o'clock the reservoir sprung a leak and did a considerable washing down the side of the hill. A regular brook passed on either side of Charles Gilbert's place and the road for some distance was covered with mud and water.

The cause of the leak appears very simple after looking over the situation. Water is kept in the reservoir to within about a foot and a half of the top of the embankment. This embankment on the lower side of the reservoir is comparatively narrow and at the top is frozen about three feet in from the reservoir side, three feet from the hillside, and three feet from the surface, making a sort of a frozen case.

The water in the reservoir has been kept at about the same level during the winter and the ice, which is over two feet thick, has firmly adhered to the bank. As the water was being pumped in Friday, it reached the high water mark and as it raised the ice it cracked the bank. The surplus water settled in and soon found its way through the unfrozen ground and after the pressure became too great it burst through the surface at the foot of the reservoir.

When the water went down to the original height the overflow ceased, and work of repairing, so that it will hold until spring, was commenced.

Rev. R. J. Bruce preaches a sermon in the Congregational church each Sabbath evening. The evening meeting last Sunday was largely attended especially by the young people with a liberal number of men and women. He held the closest attention, and an atmosphere of worshipful calm, free from the thoughtless disturbance, was noticeable. His thoughts on that often used temperance text of Daniel, that he did not propose to defile himself with the meat and wine from the King's table, took on a new meaning, and it was not a temperance text nor a temperance sermon at all. The solo by Mrs. Bruce was beautifully rendered.

BETHEL.

An Uncertainty.

The uncertainty of telephone message was illustrated here recently by a call which came over the wire to one of local ministers last Saturday asking to attend a funeral at East Lovell, Monday at 1 p. m. The minister repeated the message to see if it was all right and received reply "yes". Early Monday morning the minister started on the long drive of twenty-two miles to the east part of Lovell. First stopping at village No. 4 he inquired in regard to the funeral and no one there knew of the parties mentioned neither did they know of any "East Lovell". Passing on to the next village of Lovell the same inquires were met with the same results. Concluding that a mistake had been made by the operator who sent the message, the minister after seeing that his horse was fed and cared for and obtaining dinner for himself, set his face homeward about 2 o'clock and at 7 returned home, to find that the services were to be at East Milton and the pastor would have the service at 10 the next morning. The next day a drive of 30 miles finished the event.

Board of Trade Banquet.

The banquet of the Bethel Board of Trade given at Prospect Hotel Friday evening may well be called the event of the season in Bethel.

The genial manager of the hotel, Harry King, had prepared for the crowd, but when instead of 90 there was some 115, it required some extra effort to care for them, but he did it and did it well. The service was excellent, the menu of the best and everything possible done to make the affair a success, so far as the hotel management was concerned.

The large double dining room was taxed to its capacity with tables which here attractively decorated with cut flowers furnished by A. Vandenkerekhoven. In these brilliantly lighted rooms were gathered at eight o'clock about 115 men and woman of Bethel. Not until ten o'clock were the tables cleared and things in readiness for the post prandial exercises.

The president of the Board of Trade Ellery C. Park acted as toastmaster. All the toasts and responses had to do in some way with the interests of Bethel and its people and nearly every point of local interest was touched upon by the different speakers. The speakers included: E. C. Bowler, N. R. Springer, D. G. Lovejoy, Rev. W. C. Curtis, Dr. R. R. Tibbetts, J. S. Hutchins, F. B. Merrill, F. H. Hanscom, Rev. C. L. Banghart, Dr. I. W. Wight and Rev. J. H. Little.

Not until 12 30 were the exercises closed with the singing of the first verse of "America."

D. Hannibal Grover, son of the late Silas and Susannah (Blanchard) Grover, died of apoplexy at his home on Mill street, Bethel, Friday night, Jan. 20th, aged nearly 76 years. His funeral was held at the home Monday afternoon, in charge of his pastor, Rev. W. C. Curtis. Burial in the family lot at Woodlawn cemetery. One sister died recently in the West and one sister survives him in the home and one still lives in the West.

The selectmen have appointed Harry E. Jordan to fill the vacancy in the office of town clerk of Bethel caused by the recent death of L. T. Barker.

John Merrill is at the C. M. G. hospital in Lewiston, receiving treatment for blood poisoning caused by an injury received while working in the woods.

Dr. J. G. Gehring of Bethel has purchased of R. S. Kilborn three fourths of the Frye lot so called of some 112 acres, not far distant from the Gehring estate in Bethel This is a timber and wood lot.

There are, including the rural delivery routes, 41 ven incoming and the same number of outgoing mails at Bethel post office daily. This is a distributing point for a large territory centered about Bethel including the lake region.

Probably very nearly the last of what is called the old growth pine in Bethel, has been sold to the Duncan Lumbering Co., by Leland F. Bartlett. Some of the trees were 4 feet in diameter and contained nearly 4,000 feet of lumber. Twenty-six trees were sold standing for $400.

Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Kilborn left Bethel, Monday morning for New York and will sail Wednesday on the White Star steamer "Cletic" for four or five months abroad. On their cruise through the Mediterranean, stops will be made at the Azores, Madeira Islands, Gibraltar, the Riviera, Naples and Genoa. They will visit Egypt, the Holy Land, Turkey, Greece, Servia, Roumania, Austria and France. While in Egypt an excursion of two weeks will be taken on the Nile as far as Assuan.

Middle Intervale.

Dr. Twaddle has been to his Ferry Farm recently, where he has been employed in lumbering. The Smith family have moved into his house for the winter.

Herman Mason and family were here Sunday, Jan. 22, calling on his aunts, Mrs. Gorham, Mrs. Sanborn and Susan Kimball. These sisters live here together or very near where the sisters were born, on what is known as the uncle Israel Kimball farm.

Our little Blanche is making friends with snow birds by throwing out crumbs and fine grain. Her cat watches for them, but seldom if ever catches one. She loves the birds and flowers and beautiful sunset, and there are many older ones than she that do more mischief.

HIDDEN DANGERS

Nature Gives Timely Warnings That No Norway Citizen Can Afford to Ignore.

DANGER SIGNAL No.1 comes from the kidney secretions. They will warn you when the kidneys are sick. Well kidneys excrete a clear, amber fluid. Sick kidneys send out a thin, pale and foamy, or thick, red, ill-smelling urine, full of sediment and irregular of passage.

DANGER SIGNAL No. 2 comes from the back. Back pains, dull and heavy or sharp and acute, tell you of sick kidneys and warn you of the coming of dropsy, diabetes and Bright's disease. Doan's Kidney Pills cure sick kidneys and cure them permanently. Her's Norway proof:

Mrs. P. Walker, Cottage St., Norway, Me., sayes: "I have used Doan's Kidney Pills and must acknowledge that I have been greatly benefited. While my case was no way serious, I was in misery all the time. Symptoms pointed to a severe kidney disorder. Learning of Doan's Kidney Pills, I decided to try them and procured a box from Stone's Drug Strre. In a short time after commencing their use I felt much better and as I continued taking them, I steadily impoved. I can recommend Doan's Kidney Pills as an excellent remedy for kidney disease." 4.5

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cts. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York sole agents for the United States.

That Blest Old Song.

There's a bonnie wee bird singing in the tree,
Singing in the tree by the cottage door;
He brings sweet memories back to me,
Back to me from days of yore.
Days of yore when I was young,
When I was young in ye olden time,
When another bird so often sung
The same old song, the same sweet rhyme.
There's a bonnie wee girl sitting on my knee,
Sitting on my knee by the cottage door;
She brings dear memories back to me;
Back to me from days of yore,
Days of yore, my days of youth,
My days of youth in ye olden time;
When another girl I told the truth,
And her bright eyes danced the same sweet rhyme.
Nigh the kirkyard hedge where daises grow,
There's a grassy mound and a weathered stone,
Where an old gnarled maple's boughs hang low,
Peacefully sleeping—all alone,—
'Neath yonder mound my darling lies;
My darling of ye olden time,
With love's sweet music in her eyes,
That blest old song, the soul's one rhyme.

THE DREAMER.

Welcome for a New Pipe.

In recent times the people of Scotland have not distinguished themselves in the field of invention. They have contributed nothing to the perfection of airships, telephones or other useful things. This seemed strange, because a century or so ago the Scotch were identified with most of the great inventions and improvements in machinery and engineering.

However, the grand old country has shaken off her apathy, as it were, and it remained for one of her citizens to invent a pipe that promises to revolutionize smoking. The trouble with briar and meerschaum pipes and other common kinds, is that they soon become as strong as Hackenschmidt, and a man who carries one attracts the attention of the health authorities. Nicotine accumulates in the bowl and stem, and the smoker poisons himself gradually, and finally dies in horrible agony, and is buried in the alley without benefit of clergy.

Some Scotchman, whose name has not yet been given to the public, compounded some sort of material that makes the ideal pipe. It looks like clay, but it isn't clay. It is porous and absorbs the nicotine, and the pipe is always dry. The man who smokes it is always wondering where the juice goes to. He becomes so absorbed in speculations of this kind that he neglects his work, and abuses his family, and finally is sent to the poorhouse because he has no visible means of support.

This remarkable pipe colors up like a meerschaum; and the more you smoke it the better it tastes. Thus smoking becomes a pleasure instead of a disagreeable duty. The country is full of men who smoke nearly all the time, in order to protect their family from deadly germs. They groan under the burden, but, with Spartan heroism, their loved ones would fall victims to glanders or appendicitis if they quit. Only those who have suffered and endured for the protection of others can understand the self-sacrifice of these noble men. However, this new Scotch pipe comes to them with healing in its wings, so to speak. Hereafter they can smoke all day long, and until bedtime in the evening, and find it a pastime rather than an ordeal.

Just Across the Car.

Across the car—the sort of car that has one long seat down the sides—you can see all sorts of things.

You start at the beginning and see a small boy looking out the front window at the motorman.

Next to him is the fat man, taking up enough room for two and lapping over, as it were, on the people on either side of him.

Next to him is a very thin man, with glasses hooked over his ear, plainly for display, is reading a paper without them, and adjoining this thin man is a woman.

She is plainly fixed up for a call. She wears a hat smothered with ostrich feathers, and as you look at her her eyes meet yours. Does her gaze fall modestly? Nary a fall. She stares contemptuously at you—you worm—and as your gaze falls she hurriedly pulls her dress down so you can't see whether she has on low cut shoes or not.

Immediately opposite you is a healthy, middle-class woman with two healthy, middle-class infants. They are both under five years of age, we know, because she told the conductor so, and the conductor turned and winked at us.

One of the infants is trying to get the stylish woman's ostrich feathers and the other is standing on the coattails of a young man sitting next, and is trying to reach the push button that stops the car.

Oh, it's a grand sight, this looking across the opposite side of a car and seeing what manner of people ride on cars.

Probably the same kind are on your side, and the people on the other side are enjoying them, even as you are doing.

Then a bunch of people gets into the car, and one of them squeezes into the man ahead of him, and he is jammed into the infant trying to reach the bell. The infant hits its mother's hat and knocks it askew.

The mother throws her head aside and a hatpin jabs the other child, which sets up a yell, and grabs—oh, yes, oh, joy—the nearest ostrich plume of the stylish woman.

See the stylish woman. Insulted? Oh, ye little gods and ginger cookies, no, the word doesn't fit. She throws herself sideways like a tarpon feeling the hook, and tears the newspaper from the reader's hands. He rises, scowling bitterly, and knocks a bundle off on the floor. Oh, was it china? It was. It is, but not the china it was.

He steps on the foot of the fat man, and the fat man, jerking his elbow back, pokes the small boy, who yells. How pleasant it is to ride in a crowded car.

See the happy folks opposite. All men are brothers. We know it now, having brothers of our own, and knowing that they act just as these people are acting. Let us off at the next street, conductor.

Disappearing Yankee.

There is nothing particularly new in the statement frequently seen and heard, that the old New England stock is disappearing, particularly from the farms of New England, and it is to be regretted that the situation in many parts of the farming sections of New England seem to support the statement and lend probability to the prediction that the typical New Englander will soon become an extinct species of human being.

We are glad, however, that we are not able to take so pessimistic a view of the future as that expressed by a recent visitor, who declared that "in three generations the Yankee will disappear from the Maine farms."

We may, perhaps, run the risk of being branded as heretic, but we must confess to an absence of any real feeling over the question of whether the fourth generation of New England farmers, counting from the present time, shall be typical Yankees, or an improved race of New Englanders, for we are just enough fatalists to have a faith—perhaps not a blind faith, in view of teachings of history—that future New Englanders will be New Englanders in character and principles, a vigorous, upright, honest and progressive manhood and womanhood, devoted to the ideals upon which New England and the nation were founded, and worthy in every way, of the faith which we may desire to repose in them for the future of our little informal confederacy of commonwealths.

The New England Yankee, as a rule, is proud of his ancestry, of the stock from which he sprung, and he has good reason to be proud.

Yet the race, if we may call ourselves a race, is not old enough to have become well established, if we compare age with the generations of the old world, and it may be that it is to be strengthened or improved by the infusion of other blood before that strength is acquired which will make for permanence.

But we are not able to feel any anxiety over the question of the the continuance of the purity of the Yankee or his continuance at all. If he does not maintain himself and his place in New England farms as well as elsewhere, it will be because he was not not able or willing to do it, and in either event he will deserve to be displaced.

The great thing for us all to do at the present time, thus as far as we are able the best for the future, is to do our duty. That is a work which needs no modification no elaboration.

We do not believe that the typical New Englander, so far as he has been and is mentally and physically capable of maintaining himself for succeeding generations, and therefore, fitted to survive in the progress of time and the advancement of the world, will disappear from the scene of the world's activities, but if he is not capable of reproducing and maintaining himself, it is fitting that another take his place.

And, what difference does it make whether the typical Yankee shall continue as a type or whether men of other origin shall come in to continue the work the Yankee has so splendidly planned and carried out to the present or some other time?

We shall have lived and have our part in affairs, and shall have contributed our bit to the future. If we are not able to be the controlling force of the future, we shall not certainly be a vitally influencing spirit; for the work of the New Englander, the typical Yankee, as we understand that term, has left its indelible impress upon everything that is connected with New England, in business, farming and all affairs.

Breaks Up Cold.

Thousands are Using the New Method with Wonderful Results.

Cut out this prescription Madam: you are the one that must look after the health of the household, and you are the one in these days of high prices that must manage things economically.

Someone in the family may have a hard cold this winter; it may be in the head, perhaps in the chest.

It matters not where; Here is some advice and a prescription that will break up any cold in a few hours, and without taking harmful drugs or strong drinks into the stomach.

First of all, look after the bowels. The tongue will show whether the liver is right or not. If the bowels need attention, a good dose of castor oil made tasteless with a little orange juice will do the trick, although any reliable cartbartic will do.

Then try this economical treatment: into a bowl of boiling water pour a teaspoonful of HYOMEI (pronounce it High-o-me) cover both head and bowl with a towel, and breathe deep into the lungs the soothing, healing vapor.

Breathe this vapor for five or ten minutes until the head feels fine and clear, then go to bed and sleep soundly until morning.

A bottle of HYOMEI costs cents at Noyes Drug Store and druggists everywhere. A complete outfit which include a hard rubber pocket inhaler with which you can breathe it any time or place, costs only $1.00. It is guaranteed to cure catarrh, coughs, colds, sore throat and croup, or money back. 1&6

Work and Worry and Sleep.

"I am half crazy," said a woman yesterday. "I have so much to do that I can't sleep, and I lie awake fully half the night trying to figure out how to get through the next day."

Ridiculous—the lying awake I mean.

"Same here," said a slangy person who overheard her. "So much to do that I am developing a fine little case of insomnia over it all. I dread to go to sleep, because I know I must wake up to such a mountain of responsibilities and labors."

This is perfectly absurd. No one has too much work to do. Work—it is the greatest thing in the world—lots of it.

But, worry? Well, a very little of that goes a long way. Any woman with brains and physical strength enough to work should have no worries. Shoo them off. Just don't have them.

This is a worrisome time of year. We need extra guards out now to keep the fiends off.

And wait until you have your pen in your hand and your account book before you—that is the time to get on with your office work.

And wait until sunrise—when you are clutching a mop in one hand and a hammer in the other—that is the time to put the rooms in order and rehang the pictures which are annoying you because they are in the wrong place.

The attitude for achievement is upright; on both feet.

It is psychologically absurd to imagine one can clear away work while lying on one's back.

Sleep!

And use daylight for work.

And never worry.

GOOD NEWS FOR THE SICK

So-Called Hopless Cases Cured. What Proof Could Be More Convincing?

Consultation and Advice Free for the Remainder of the Month.

His treatment is directed not to making them feel better at first but to curing them entirely in the end. Indeed, in certain diseases the patients may feel no benefit whatever for two or three weeks. Some of the quickest and most permanent cures are those in which the benefit is not apparent to the patient in the beginning.

He first removes the cause of the disease and then a permanent cure can be established. He treats only chronic diseases and patients never tire of telling how they went to him after other good doctors had treated them without benefit, and how they were restored to health in a short time by pleasant home treatment. The cures include all kinds of chronic troubles such as catarrh, nervous, blood diseases and rheumatism. Any one may call on him and have a consultation free of charge. If he believes you curable or can be benfitted he will tell you the cost of the treatment necessary but if he finds your case incurable he will tell you so.

Catarrh is the root and cause of many diseases. To cure them to stay cured it is necessary to remove the cause and so make the cure permanent. He guarantees that if the trouble should come back the patient may return for treatment without a penny for his services.

Sickness among women destroys happiness and wrecks homes. Many men are kept poor caring for sick women. Many women drag through a miserable existence to a premature death suffering from some form of disease which a specialist might cure. Female diseases are as easily cured as measles if one "knows how." It is the "know how" that is valuable. The expert specialists now at Beal's Hotel have spent many years to learn how to cure diseased organs of women. Please notice we said "cure the diseased organs of women." We do not mean tearing or cutting them out. Any surgeon can cut out an organ because it is inflamed but no one can put back an organ that is cut out nor make a healthy woman by such brave destruction. He has perfected a treatment that takes the inflammation out and heals up the damage done by disease and allows sick women the precious life and organs that God gave her.

If you have any of the symptoms below you have female disease:

Do you bloat?
Have you Leucorrhoea?
Is urinat on painful?
Have you pain at stool?
Is the abdomen enlarged?
Are you weak and tired?
Have you fainting spells?
Is there nausea or vomiting?
Do you weep without cause?
Have you lost your ambition?
Are your menses absent?
Are your periods irregular?
Do you flow excessively?
Have you cold hands and feet?
Does your heart palpitate?
Have you pain over bladder?
Are you nervous and hysterical?
Is there numbness of the limbs?
Haue you pain about the groin?
Have you pain in lower part of back?
Have you dark circles under eyes?
Do you have hot and cold flashes?
Have you heat or swelling about the parts?
Is there feeling of "goneness" in pi of stomach?
Have you piles or fistula?
Have you pain, smarting, or itching?

Call or send for symptom blank and learn if your case is curable, free. This notice means much more to sick women than the casual reader may realize.

Mrs. Davis, a well known lady of South Paris, says:—

I have had a severe case of Rheumatism for the past eight years and suffered continually.

I decided to try the Electro Medical treatment when I found those Specialists were in Norway.

When I first went to them for treatment I had to be carried in and out of their office. After the first few treatments I began to improve rapidly, and now, I can walk in and out with little assistance.

I am relieved of pain and soreness and I sleep first-rate which I had not been able to do before for a long time.

It has also helped me in many other ways. MRS. GEO. H. DAVIS.

Norway, Me., Jan. 14, 1911.

I have taken the treatment of the Specialist at Beal's Hotel for lung and stomach trouble and now I am feeling the best I have since last June when I began to run down. I had Consumption in the first stages and a complication of other troubles. I had tried many kinds of medicine without results in my desperation for I knew the result if my case was neglected and I dreaded the thoughts of leaving my eight children alone in the world. Knowing the value of time and the danger of delay in my case, I determined to try the Electro Medical Specialist for I had heard much of their wonderful cures, and now I am so pleased and grateful that I want others to know of it so that they may be cured as I am. MRS. C. D. MORSE.

If you have weak lungs remember catarrh leads to consumption.

Freeman Frost has several gold pieces made from California gold, that his father, Peter Frost got when in California. Mr. Frost values them highly because his father did. The gold is a deep yellow with a copper colored tinge, decidedly different from what we are accustomed to consider gold color. We saw one dollar piece of 1853; one dollar of 1856; two dollars and one-half of 1873; a quarter of 1863; and a half of 1856. The half is octogon in shape instead of being round. Mr. Frost says those in the form of octogon are were used more for pocket pieces than for general circulation.

I LIKE to meet the man who laughs
Until he throws a fit
To work my ancient jokes on him
And see his fat sides split.
I gladly buy him a cigar—
Indeed, would make it two—
To one who very kindly stands
And waits to hear me through.

I'm not afraid when he is near
The jest time tried to spring,
Because I know that on the air
His merry laugh will ring.
The ones that from the ark came forth
He seems to like the best,
Although he will consent to laugh
At some more modern jest.

What do I care though kindness prompts
His laugh, and that alone?
It pleases me as well as though
He cracked his funny bone.
I take for granted that my yarn
At last has made a hit;
That I am in his eyes at least
A most amusing wit.

There is a hint concealed in this,
Though any one may wrest
The secret from its hiding place
And give the thing a test.
The way to be regarded as
The regular little gem
Is not to make the jokes, but be
The one who laughs at them.

Some Mistake.

"You are not the one who was here when I called last year," said the business visitor, looking down at the fussy little man seated at the desk.

"I am sure I am. I have been here ten years."

"I wouldn't have recognized you."

"There may be a reason for that."

"Yes?"

"Looking you over, I don't believe you are the one who called."

The Way It Works.

"Are riches dangerous?"

"Well, a rich man is apt to get into trouble."

"Explain."

"Brown had always been poor until last year."

"Well, what of that?"

"He got rich, and now he is being sued for alimony."

Reference.

"So he finally won her."

"Yes."

"I hear he had a hard time of it."

"It seemed that way. She was inclined to be doubtful."

"How did he manage it."

"Got an affidavit from his former wife."

Johnny's Reason.

"I am not going to school today."

"Why not, Johnny?"

"I don't feel well."

"Where do you feel bad?"

"I have such a stomach ache in my ear!"

Good Job.

"Can I sell you anything, madam?"

"You can't."

"Why not?"

"Because I have been sold to the limit of the law already."

His Limitations.

He tamed the tawny tiger
And trailed him to his lair,
He ran down the rhinoceros
And slew the polar bear,
The elephant before his wrath
In terror wild would fly,
But when the bill collector called
He couldn't meet his eye.

Stone in Bladder Removed in Remarkable Way.

Camp Hill, Ala., Aug. 16th, 1909. Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y.

A year and a half ago I was taken with a severe attack of kidney trouble that pained me to such an extent that morphine had to be given me. Was attended by a doctor who pronounced it a stone in the bladder and prescribed Lithia Water. I took Lithia Water and tablets for some time and received no relief from them. I stopped taking medicine for sometime and having some of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root in the house, I decided to try it and felt much relieved; while taking the second bottle commenced to pass gravel in urine, until I had passed in all at least a half a dozen or more and have not suffered the slightest since and in all have taken one bottle and a half and feel very grateful to Swamp-Root.

Yours very truly,
H. W. SPINKS.

Personally appeared before me this 16th of August, 1909, H. W. Spinks, who subscribed the above statement and made oath that same is true in substance and in fact.

A. B. Lee,

SAVED FROM AN OPERATION

By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Peoria, Ill.—"I wish to let every one know what Lydia E. Pinkham's remedies have done for me. For two years I suffered. The doctors said I had tumors, and the only remedy was the surgeon's knife. My mother bought me Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and today I am a healthy woman. For months I suffered from inflammation, and your Sanative Wash relieved me. Your Liver Pills have no equal as a cathartic. Any one wishing proof of what your medicines have done for me can get it from any druggist or by writing to me. You can use my testimonial in any way you wish, and I will be glad to answer letters."—MRS. CHRISTINA REED, 105 Mound St., Peoria, Ill.

Another Operation Avoided.

New Orleans, La.—"For years I suffered from severe female troubles. Finally I was confined to my bed and the doctor said an operation was necessary. I gave Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial first, and was saved from an operation."—Mrs. LILY PEYROUX, 1111 Kerlerec St., New Orleans, La.

The great volume of unsolicited testimony constantly pouring in proves conclusively that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a remarkable remedy for those distressing feminine ills from which so many women suffer.

WATERING PLANTS.

How to Regulate the Moisture and Have Fine Growers.

Proper regulation of moisture is the greatest factor in securing healthy plant growth. While plants can withstand great extremes in temperature, corresponding extremes in moisture will surely tend to ruin if not kill even the strongest plants.

Water should be given only when needed and then in such copious quantities that the soil is thoroughly soaked. When potting plants space should always be left at the top for pouring in water. An inch or an inch and a half will suffice.

Consider the kind of plant you are watering. Soft stemmed kinds, especially those with large leaves, will require much more water than hard wooded, slow growing kinds. While the former easily recover from drought, the hard wooded suffer permanently from extremes.

The character of the soil should also regulate watering. Heavy clay soils sour easily, while very light loam soils dry out quickly, and unless carefully watched plants in them will wilt. In either case it is better to water thoroughly and less frequently than to water sparingly and often.

The seasons and time of day shou also be watched. Plants not in active growth should be watered sparingly until they have regained their foliage. Watering in the evening just before dark greatly aids fungous diseases, as the foliage remains wet through the night.

How to Obtain a Supple Waist.

An exercise to strengthen the muscles of the back, hip and abdomen is the following: Lie quite flat upon the floor, all the muscles laid straight, arms folded across the chest, toes pointed. Raise the body to an upright sitting position and lower it gently to first position again four or five times. This will strengthen the muscles about the region called the waist line, giving the suppleness so much desired. A little of this goes a long way, remember, so be careful not to do more than the prescribed four or five raisings. At first it will perhaps be quite impossible to lift the body. If so catch the toes under the edge of a bureau or washstand, thus holding the feet down. This will enable even a weak person to raise the trunk. It is sometimes as well to work up to this gradually by raising first the head only, then the head and shoulders, finally the whole trunk.

How to Clean Plumes.

If the plume is only slightly soiled it may be cleaned by being placed in a wide mouthed bottle, such as a fruit jar, and then being covered with gasoline to which a little white soap jelly has been added. It must be covered tight and left for twenty-four hours, shaking the contents occasionally. Take from the vessel and rinse in clear gasoline. Keep away from the fire. Another method said to be good is to cover the feather with a paste made from laundry starch and alcohol. When quite dry the starch should be shaken from the plume.

How to Cook Curried Eggs.

Cook six eggs in boiling water twenty minutes. Cool, remove from the shells, cut into quarters and arrange on a warm dish. Pour over the following sauce: Rub the bottom of a small frying pan with onion, pour in one gill of stock and place over the fire. Mix one teaspoonful of cornstarch and one-quarter teaspoonful of curry powder with one gill of milk and stir into the boiling stock. Season with one-third teaspoonful salt and a little pepper. Simmer for five minutes and then add teaspoonful butter.

What It Achieved

By LOUISE B. CUMMINGS

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

Ed Archer and Molly Doyle were as children one of those couples we like to read about, but the stories of whose loves are rarely finished by marriage.

There was something enduring about the affair between Ed and Molly. At any rate, it lasted till Ed went away to college, and that is about as long as child loves usually last. In this case there was nothing on either side to indicate that during Ed's college course love was smoldering in his breast or that of his child love. There was no correspondence between them, and if either ever thought of the other no one besides themselves knew it. They missed each other when Ed returned for the only vacation he spent at home, and when he was graduated as a civil engineer a position was ready for him, of which he at once availed himself. Therefore they did not meet from the time he began his studies till two years after he had been bucking against the world.

When they did meet Ed was paying attention to a young widow of means. His mother was not well, and he left his work and his charmer to pay the mother a visit. While at home he called on Molly Doyle.

Now, it happened that Molly and Ed's widow had a mutual friend. So when Ed appeared Molly knew all about his intentions, or at least what appeared to be his intentions.

She came down to meet him with a letter in her hand. After greeting him she threw the missive on a table. It was addressed and stamped ready for the mail. Molly wrote a large hand, and it didn't require a microscope to read the name of the person for whom the letter was intended. Indeed, one could decipher it from across an ordinary sized room.

Molly was not especially cordial. She did not let it appear that she expected any return of that sweet interchange of sentiment which marks a child love. Ed made approaches toward speaking of it, but met with no encouragement. The conversation turned upon Molly's friend, who was also the widow's friend, and this led to some mention of the latter, but Molly did not speak of her as a matter of interest to her or her visitor. If she had any feeling about the widow she didn't show it.

Ed's call lasted a couple of hours. When he arose to depart he asked:

"Is the letter on the table for the mail?"

"It is."

"Let me post it for you. I pass the office on my way home."

"Thank you very much."

She handed him the letter. He put it in his pocket and took leave.

The next evening he called, bringing with him some flowers. Molly softened a little at the gift. When he spoke of how many flowers he had given her when they were children she said that now he spoke of it she remembered them very well.

"By the bye," said Ed, "on leaving you last evening I was so engrossed with the pleasure of meeting you again that I forgot to post the letter you committed to my care. I have brought it back to you, thinking that after the delay you might wish to reconsider sending it."

There was an odd look in Molly's eye and a faint tinge of color in her cheek. Instead of looking disturbed over Ed's forgetfulness, she looked rather pleased.

"Tonight as you pass the office will do as well," she said and spoke of other matters.

The next evening Ed called again. This was three evenings in succession. He brought her a more substantial gift than flowers—a glove box, handsomely inlaid. She received it graciously.

"It is for atonement," he said.

"Atonement for what?"

"A bad memory. Again I have forgotten to drop your letter in the mail."

She gave him a forgiving smile—what else could she do after the atoning gift?—and said:

"Oh, it doesn't matter. Put it in as you go by tonight."

"You are very kind not to scold me. I shall keep my mind on it from the time I leave you."

"On the mailing or the letter?"

"The letter."

This evidently meant something more than the words, for Ed spoke them with his eyes fixed on her intently, and she dropped hers to the floor.

During the next call Mr. Archer made upon Miss Doyle he made no mention of the letter—at least until he arose to go. He brought her a gift, but kept it in his pocket till his visit was finished. He had a great deal to say about their childhood days—more, indeed, than he had to say about the eight or nine years that had passed since, during which he had made no effort to communicate with her or to see her. Indeed, on this latter subject he maintained a discreet silence.

It was near midnight when, having told her that he had loved her ever since he was a boy and could never love any one else, he took out his gift—a ring—and slipped it on her finger. She made no objection, since she had consented to a betrothal. Before leaving he threw the letter he had again failed to post on the table.

"Did it contain a 'Yes' or a 'No?'" he asked.

She opened it and displayed a sheet of blank paper.

"What do you do to keep your hands looking so nice?" "I don't do anything."—Buffalo Express.

Wrinkles and Krinkles.

Brilliant Light—A pinch of salt put into the lamps when they are filled with oil will cause them to burn with more brillance.

To Clean Silver—Take a soft cloth and dampen it and rub Bon Ami on it and then rub it on the silver. When Bon Ami is dry rub with a soft cloth. It doesn't scratch the silver any.

In Dampening Clothes for Ironing—Use either a whisk or one of the regular clothes sprinklers which are made for this special purpose, and have the water hot, or at least very warm. Sprinkle one piece at a time, spreading it out smooth before sprinkling, and roll it up tightly.

To Clean Carpet—A piece of garden hose makes an ideal carpet beater. While stout enough to dislodge the dust its flexibility prevents the wear and tear given by the ordinary stick or rattan beater.

A Good Carpet Cleaner—Grated Irish potato scattered freely on a carpet and then swept off will clean it and revive the colors better than any other agency. There is no danger of injury to the most delicate shades by this method.

Bridgton Academy Alumni.

More than forty members of the Bridgton Alumni Association, mostly residents of Greater Boston, gathered at the Quincy House, Boston, for their tenth annual reunion and banquet Friday night, January 21, 1911, and after dinner listened to informal talks extolling the past and prophesying the future of the institution that is the alma mater of many distinguished Bostonians and figures of national prominence. Commander Robert E. Peary, at one time a student of the academy, was expected to be present, but disappointed his fellow members.

Professor John F. Moody told of the progress being made at the Academy, and stated that for $165, yearly a student could have the best of board, a steam heated room, as well as the benefit of the best possible instruction.

Other speakers were Dr. D. O. S. Lowell, head Master of the Roxbury Latin School; Prof. Isaac Choate, Prof. C. C. Spratt; Ernest E. Smith, member of the Boston City Council; Henry H. Savage; George B. Chandler, State Senator from Conn.; Nellie Stone and Mrs. Harriet Hancock Eldridge.

The following officers were chosen for the ensuing year:—

Pres.—George C. Jillson.
V. Pres.—Irving Parker Cameron, Hattie Hancock Eldridge, Dr. E. S. Morse, John Went worth.
Chap.—Dr. George M. Bodge.
Sec.—Helen Mead.
Treas.—Willis Carsley.
Chairman of Executive Board—Henry H. Savage.

What Is a Dollar?

The Rev. George Wood Anderson of St. Louis, himself chaplin of an advertising club, recently made a few remarks before the Pilgrim Publicity Association of Boston on the almighty dollar.

"'A dollar is not an insignificant thing. It is of great value. Here is a dollar—what is it, 'Legal tender,' says one. It is more than that; this dollar is part of my life. It is one of my yesterdays. I worked hard the other day and earned a dollar. In the evening I could have thrown it away, saying that money is nothing, but I looked at it and said,

"This is all I have in tangible form of one day of my life; tomorrow I need not work, for my yesterday will secure the services of someone else who can perform my task. But I prefer to keep the dollar and earn another, and thus as I guard my health in order to take care of the future, I guard my dollars which are my past. My dollars are my yesterdays, and I shall save them until I have sufficient of them to work while I sleep. Only the product of their effort makes sure a well cared-for old age free from worry."

The Benefit of the Town.

BY HELOISE E. HERSEY.

Part II.

It was curious but true, that most of the good times in Otisfield from 1865 to 1873 were the children of the "Hearse Fund." It was before the days when Village Improvement Societies, Young People's Socities of Christian Endeavor, and church sociables vied with each other to justify and santify amusements. But here was an object which could not fail to command the respect of the gravest of church deacons, and which made indulgence in ice cream and cake and lemonade and picnics and an occasional concert or reading or lecture a positive religious duty.

So the young folk of the town ate, drank and wer merry under the contriving skill of Abby Dean, and forgot entirely what it was all about. But Abby never took 10 cents for a plate of ice cream, or reckoned the profits of a picnic down the pond or deducted the expenses of the minister from Waterford who came to lecture for the benefit of the Fund, that she did not remember what she wanted and why she wanted it. No cathedral was ever built with a loftier or more conscious purpose.

In June, 1872, the fund had grown to $256.83. The sum required was $300. That had been long agreed upon with a Boston firm whose work had been tested by the villages in the region.

At noon of a fine June day one of the hidden girls came running to Abby Dean's house to beg her to come up and see mother, who was having a terrible sinking spell. When Abby reached the clean bedroom where Mrs. Holden had been a prisoner for three years, with no definite disease but weakness, she saw on the small expressionless face the look which dignifies but once the human countenance. Mrs. Holden could scarcely speak, but she was clasping a worn old pocketbook, and out of it she took a bundle of bills which she put into Abby's hand with a whisper. "For the hearse," and then there was a flutter and a sigh, and the wife of Walter Holden had gone to join him.

The money, doubtless the personal savings of several years, was found to be $50—and in an instant the Fund was complete. It was Abby's quick thought to telegraph to Boston for the hearse, that it might be first used at Alvira Holden's funeral; it was suitable that so large a benefaction should have such poor acknowledgment as might thus be given. Abby Dean never talked about her emotions, so nobody will ever know whether she was glad or sad that the last crowning gift to the Fund for which she had worked for eight long years should have come from Walter Holden's fretful and incapable widow.

The hearse was eminently satisfactor to every one. It increased the self-respect of the town. From the minister to the grave-digger, from the children to the old folk not long for this world, there was a new interest in a funeral, and a new consolation for a grief. Abby Dean's connection with all this was recognized by making Leander the driver of the vehicle. This gave her access to the little lean-to of the Baptist meeting house which the town built for the suitable housing of its new property. She saw that the hearse was kept spotlessly free from dust or mud, and was a more diligent care-taker for love than could have been hired for money.

Twenty years drew out their quiet length over the hills and pond and meadows and farms and village of Otisfield. Abby Dean was 65 years old, but still vigorous and comely and capable—the strength of the Baptist society and the feebler Methodists, but the friend and counsellor of everybody. In August of 1893 she lost her appetite. She had some company just then, and her two nephews were growing boys, and she found the work in the kitchen heavier than usual. There was a great deal of cooking for those boys and their father. They lived in Iowa, and Abby's cooking tasted good to them. Her johnny-cakes were yellower and sweeter, and her baked beans browner, and her pies more toothsome, than those in Davenport.

Abby was an excellent housekeeper. Leander, too, had not been so strong as usual that summer, and yet it did seem as if everybody wanted him for some small job. Abby did not believe in idleness, but it seemed to her just then that she and Leander needed a rest. She had been trying for two months to find a day when he could fix the kitchen drain. It certainly had a break in it somewhere, and she noticed that her sink was not as sweet as usual. Next week the boys would have gone, and she and Leander would attend to that drain the first thing.

When the boys went, however, their active, genial aunt felt too sick to think of the hygiene of her kitchen, and in two days she took to her bed. Dr. Richards looked grave over the case, and the second day called it typhoid fever; and in less than two days the disease had done its work, and Abby Dean was free for other and larger activities than those which had blessed the little town of Otisfield.

Afterwards Mrs. Martin, who nursed her, used to relate that in her wandering talk Abby had returned to the time when she was raising the money for the hearse, and had gone over and over again the addition of the small sums of dollars and cents in a strenuous effort after accuracy. But there was no suggestion of the premonition of death in her murmured, incoherent sentences. The hearse had established itself in her mind as an institution. She rested serenely in the thought of it, as a man might in the consciousness of a vast philanthropy, or the medieval artist in their noble churches.

Now a strange and cruel thing had happened while Abby lay so sick in her little house opposite the Baptist meeting house. It is to be hoped that the mists of delirium hid it from her. The town had voted at the May meeting to have the hearse painted and varnished, and had appropriated $25 for the purpose. Thanks to Abyy's care, it had stood the wear of 20 years, but now it would be improved by a visit to the repair shop.

In August the carriage maker in the neighboring town of Norway had had a leisure week, and had determined to go to Otisfield for the hearse, which he had promised to put in good condition at his earliest convenience. He drove slowly away with it on Monday. The next Monday Abby Dean died. No one had quite the energy to send for the hearse, even if it had been certain that it was in condition for use.

Abby herself would have been the one to meet such an emergency if it had happened while she was alive. Leander was so bewildered by his sudden loss that he had no thought for more than the dumb loneliness of the moment. The day of the funeral came, and in the August noontide the long procession made its slow way from the Baptist meeting house to the cemetery on the hill a half mile away. Everybody from the country round was at the funeral. Three or four people remembered Abby's interest in the purchase of the hearse, and were sorry that the plain coffin covered with a black double shawl, borrowed from Mrs. Martin for the purpose, was carried in the new grocery wagon, which looked strangely incongruous with its bright-yellow wheels and its sad, black burden.

On Thursday the hearse came back from Norway, with its shining new coat of paint and varnish. Leander Dean sat drearily on his doorstep with Abby's brother, who had been summoned back from Chicago by the death. As the hearse passed the house, Leander said, speaking more to himself than his companion, "Seein' she set so much by it, it does seem kinder too bad she couldn't a bed the good of it; but I 'spose it's just about the same to her naow."

Peruna Secrets You Should Know

Golden Seal, the root of the above plant, is a very useful medicine. Many people gather it in our rich woodlands during the summer. Few people know how valuable it is in dyspepsia, catarrh, and as a general tonic.

Many thousand pounds of this root are used each year in the famous catarrh remedy, Peruna. This fact explains why everybody uses Peruna for catarrh.

They did not know that a license was required so I went with them to the clerk's office and they arranged the matter. I told them to come back at a stated time and I would marry them. The day designated the fellow came alone and said he was ready to be married. 'Where's the young lady?' I asked. 'Why,' replied the fellow, 'has she got to come too?' The fellow thought it queer that I couldn't perform the ceremony unless the lady was present, but went out and soon returned with her."

For Constipation.

A Medicine That Does Not Cost Anything Unless It Cures.

The active medicinal ingredients of Rexall Orderlies, which are odorless, tasteless and colorless, is an entirely new discovery. Combined with other extremely valuable ingredients, it forms a perfect bowel regulator, intestinal invigorator and strengthener. Rexall Orderlies are eaten like candy and are notable for their agreeableness to the palate and gentleness of action. They do not cause griping or any disagreeable effect or inconvenience.

Unlike other preparations for a like purpose, they do not create a habit, but instead they overcome the cause of habit acquired through the use of ordinary laxatives, cathartics and harsh physic, and permanently remove the cause of constipation or irregular bowel action.

We will refund your money without argument if they do not do as we say they will. Two sizes, 25c and 10c. Sold only at our store—The Rexall Store. F. P. Stone, Main St.
